

1. Screenshots

2. This site is just static html and css. There are no additional features.
3. The project is complete.
4. The hardest part of this project was getting the footer to stay at the bottom of the page without overlapping the main content. I overcame this challenge by making the html body a flexbox and adjusting the spacing of the header, main content, and footer according to how much content was in main.